The New Mosaics

Synopsis

This volume starts with simple mosaic projects using traditional materials before moving into creative ways using traditional and other materials, such as metal, buttons or recycled waste. The book includes step-by-step instructions and all the necessary patterns and templates. Projects include: fancy plant pots and vases, decorated table tops, ornamental mirrors, white-on-white lampshade, earth-cast birdbath and jewellery.

Customer Reviews

If you're looking to learn the ins and outs of mosaic making, if you're looking to glue shards of tesserae to boards and lamps and things, this isn't the book for you. If, on the other hand, you simply love the "look" of mosaics, this book will teach you how to recreate it using beads, bottle caps, dice, and everything else listed in the subtitle. Though many of the projects are attractive (like the "Luxurious Journal," made of velvet squares), many are also a little tacky (like a clock made of beans). A few of the projects involve creating mosaics with actual glass and tile tesserae, but these are generally quickies-for beginners. And although the gallery in the back of the book contains a few terrific pieces, almost all of them are in dozens of other books on mosaic. It's a nice book for your mosaics library, but it's less than essential.

Very pleased with the service. The book is in wonderful condition. Many pictures makes it easier to understand. Basic to more difficult. Very nice book for a beginner as well. Not only for more advanced.

This book show you that you can use many materials to do a mosaic. If you want different ideas, this is the right book.
